

The union will not be able to change the way we run PRMCE.

- While a union represents caregivers in bargaining, management continues to be responsible for operating the organization and making decisions about how work is structured and how care and services are delivered.
- Even in a union environment, management typically retains responsibility for running the business. This includes setting goals, determining staffing models, organizing departments, establishing performance expectations, and managing budgets.

Learn more at GetTheFactsPRMCE.com

